

CRUISER SUNK AFTER ATOM BOMB DELIVERED

By MORRIE LANDSBERG
GUAM, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Two great explosions flashed out of her slim bow at 12 minutes past midnight. Flames streaked through her shock-darkened passageways, searing the piled bodies of her crew into shapeless masses. Within 15 minutes she plunged head-first into the sea.
That was the end of the proud cruiser Indianapolis—torpedoed 450 miles off Leyte July 30 with 883 dead and missing, after she had finished a record speed run from San Francisco to Guam to deliver the first atom bomb to the B-29s. She apparently fell to a Japanese submarine.

For the 500 crewmen and the handful of officers hurled alive into the midnight sea, it was the beginning of a living nightmare. It ended, for some, more than 115 hours later—after some of the crazed seamen had killed each other, and others had dived suicidally into the cooling blue depths, heading for some magic island, they saw in their feverish dreams.

No one beyond the oil-streaked circle of men and debris in the sea knew what had happened to the unescorted cruiser—until a Peleliu search plane led the way to the rescue of the 315 survivors five days later.
Survivors said nearly 700 men had gone down with the ship. Hundreds more plunged into the sea without life preservers or rafts, so death quickly began to pick them off.

Ten officers and 305 enlisted men lived through the torture. Capt. Charles Butler McVay third, Washington, D. C., told much of the story of the tragedy. A raft saved him and Lt. Cmdr. Lewis L. Haynes, senior doctor (wife, three sons, Fairfield, Conn.) described the plight of the swimmers.
Clad in his pajama top, McVay ran to the chart house and told the navigator, Cmdr. John Hopkins Janney, Baltimore, Md.—now

WORLD ENTERS ERA OF PEACE

Emperor Bitter As People Told Of Loss of War

Military Leaders, Too, Humiliated by Defeat Which Is Blamed On Atom Bomb—'We Have Lost, But This Is Temporary,' Chief of Broadcasting Company Says—War Minister Suicides To Save Face

(By the Associated Press)
The Japanese people heard from the lips of Emperor Hirohito today the news that Japan—a nation which has boasted it never lost a war—had been compelled to surrender to the Allies to escape "obliteration."

Hirohito's announcement, the first radio broadcast ever made by a Japanese emperor to his subjects, attributed Japan's plight to the invention of the atomic bomb, which he described as "a new and most cruel weapon, the power of which to do damage is incalculable."
"This is the reason we have ordered the acceptance of the joint declaration of the powers," the emperor declared.

Hirohito—in the face-saving tradition dear to the Japanese—maintained to the end Japan had

What strange reactions some people have to war—and peace!

A man and woman just sauntered by the open window of the office baring their grudge against war, not so much by what they said as how they said it and what they left unsaid.

"I hear the radio say we ain't gonna have no more gasoline rationing purty soon when the war's over," the woman said. The man at her side grunted a "yeh" in a scornful tone.

That little episode happened in less time than it takes to tell it. . . but it was so revealing. It was apparent that their only interest was in their own privations.

Here were we in the Record-Herald newsroom, chewing our fingernails nervously as we waited for a flash on the wire that the Japs had surrendered. And, strange as it may seem, we were talking not of a chance to get out an extra or complaining about the merry-go-round of reports we had been riding for four days. We were saying that we wouldn't care about anything if the delay didn't mean more good American boys were still in danger as long as the fighting had to continue.

I expect that there are a lot of people whose principal interest in the end of the war is the lifting of wartime restrictions, many of which don't affect them even remotely. That seems almost unbelievable, and I hope I am wrong.

Of course the vast majority are thinking of the boys and would gladly make sacrifices more rigid than those of wartime just to get them safely home. But, the world is made up of all kinds of people.

NEVIUS SENTENCED ONE TO TEN YEARS

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Former Clark County prosecutor Jerome A. Nevius was sentenced to serve one to 10 years in the State Penitentiary on three counts of bribery today.

Common Pleas Judge Golden C. Davis designated the sentences to run concurrently.

Nevius was recently convicted of accepting bribes from Joseph Parisi and Ralph Schear both of Dayton to permit operation of a gambling establishment in Clark County.

FALL FROM HIGH CHIMNEY IS FATAL TO MAN, 45

been battling only in self-defense and that she had given up the fight "to strive for the common prosperity and happiness of all nations and the well-being of our subjects."

The bitter reaction of Japan's militarists to the ignominy of unconditional surrender, however, was reflected in the immediate suicide of War Minister Gen. Koreichika Anami and a broadcast address by Premier Baron Kantaro Suzuki in which he declared: "This day has become the day that never, never will be forgotten by the Japanese people."

The same bitterness was reflected in a Tokyo broadcast in which Kusun Oya, identified as chief of the overseas bureau of the Japan broadcasting corporation, told troops on the fighting fronts to surrender.

"We have come to a point where it is useless to resist the enemy further," Oya said. "We have bowed to the enemy's material and scientific power. We have lost, but this is temporary."

Oya added, the FCC said, Japan's mistake was the lack of "material strength, necessary scientific knowledge and equipment, and declared: 'this mistake we must amend.'"

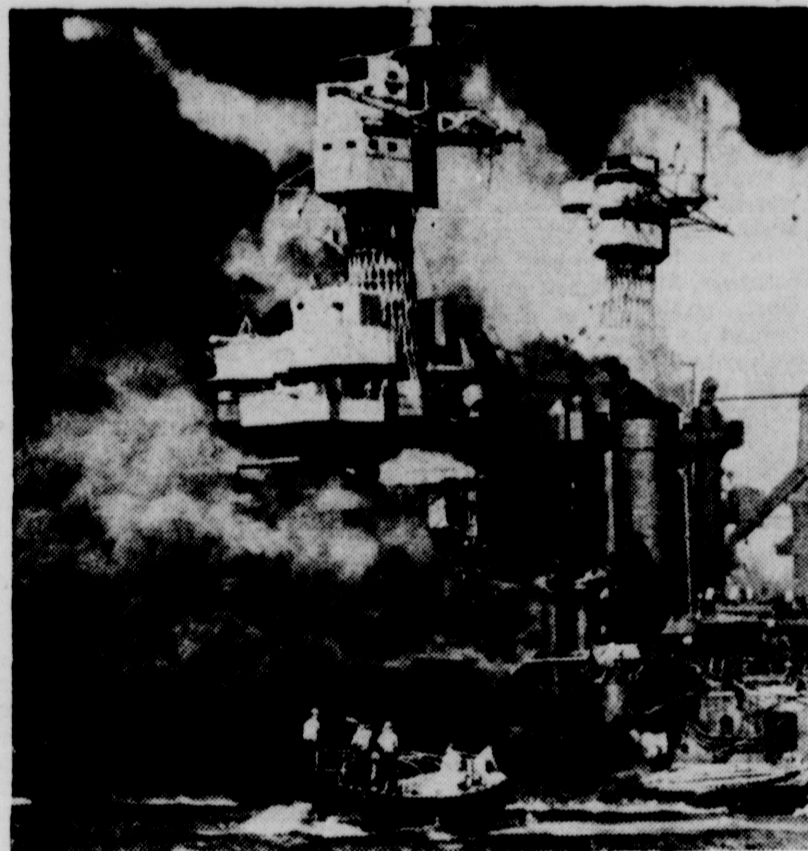

Suzuki's address to the Japanese people described a tearful "historical conference" in which, the premier said, the emperor made the surrender decision. He said Hirohito told the cabinet:

"I do not wish to turn the country into scorched earth, even though my life be lost."

Suzuki said the emperor's decision was "due to the atom bomb and the entering of the Soviets into the war." All present at the conference "could not help but cry," he added.

The premier told the nation: "With an uncheckable flow of tears we face the situation. Each one of us must survive through this predicament. Bloody and tearful life will begin for the (Please Turn to Page Two)

Remember Pearl Harbor and Corregidor?

REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR . . . and Corregidor? The sneak attack and death march have been avenged. Nearly four years ago, Jap planes punctuated "peace" talks in Washington by deceitful Japs with a blasting of American warships at Hawaii. The picture at the left is a reminder. Thick smoke pours from the USS West Virginia burning at her anchorage at Pearl Harbor and the one at the right shows the valiant defenders of the Philippines as they surrendered on Corregidor on May 6, 1942, where they made their last stand. That was the beginning of the now infamous death march.

Bedlam of Joy Breaks Loose Here When Japs Surrender

Horns tooting, firecrackers popping, whistles shrieking and bells clanging, people laughing and crying, throwing up torn bits of paper, church services and singing—that was the V-J celebration in Washington C. H.

It began almost the moment President Truman made his announcement of the Japanese surrender. Bill Clark let out a blast on his air whistle and the fire department siren started its familiar wail.

In half an hour's time, the sidewalks were jammed with people and the street choked with a steady stream of automobiles, all tooting their horns, all filled with jubilant passengers.

today the tops in celebrations.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche tried to set the keynote by officially proclaiming the day as one of prayer and thanksgiving, not forgetting to order state offices closed and ordering a full-day holiday for state workers.

Soaked confetti, still clinging to streets where rain had splattered celebrators, symbolized more the mood of most vacationing war workers, restaurant, bar and store employees, who'd all been told to take the day off.

In Columbus, the "business-as-usual" boys were those selling V-J souvenirs 15 minutes after President Truman's announcement. Happy buyers forgot there is no V-J Day until MacArthur officially accepts Japan's surrender.

In Newark, Mrs. Amelia Reed, 35, suffered a shattered left arm when she shot off an unsupervised loaded shot gun. The Red Cross blood donor booth in Newark was a near-casualty as some overhappy individual set fire to the structure.

Happiest—if there could be a "happiest"—were the wives of servicemen who were in the Pacific. 6 Years of War Are Ended With Jap Surrender

Capitulation by Mikado Fails To Stop All Shooting, However, Five Nip Planes Shot Down by U. S. Warships—American Commanders Take No Chances With More Treachery—Return To Peace Already Begun at Home

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The world entered a new era of peace today.

Along the enormous battlefronts of the Pacific and Asia the mightiest forces of destruction ever assembled rolled to a victorious halt around the prostrate, vanquished empire of Japan.

Throughout the Allied world, wracked by war or threat of war since Germany struck Poland on September 1, 1939, it was a time for rejoicing and celebration. But already the problems of peace were beginning to pile up.

"We are faced with the greatest task we ever have been faced with," said President Truman. "The emergency is as great as it was on December 7, 1941."

Mr. Truman announced Japan's capitulation at 7 o'clock, Eastern War Time, last night. The act marked the beginning of a truce that will last a few days until General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, as Supreme Allied Commander, can accept formal Japanese surrender on the basis of the Potsdam declaration.

While promising the Japanese people free and decent lives, this declaration lays down a hard future. It is much like that imposed on Germany, except that the Japanese will have their own national government, including an emperor, under rigid Allied control.

All means ever to make war again are to be stripped from them. At advance Pacific bases military government officers stood ready to move in with occupation forces and carry out these terms.

The war was still on the Pacific. A communique from Guam early today reported that units of the U. S. Third Fleet in the vicinity of Honshu were being approached by Japanese aircraft.

"Those that do so are being shot down," the war bulletin said, adding that five had been destroyed since noon Japanese time (11 P. M. EWT Tuesday night).

Many Japanese who played leading roles in the war were expected by officials here to commit Hara-Kiri as a result of the defeat. Domei reported from Tokyo early today that the Japanese war minister, Korechika Anami, had killed himself to "atone for his failure."

Mr. Truman announced the surrender at a two-minute news conference. He released at the same time the text of an acceptance note which the Japanese government had sent to Washington through neutral Switzerland yesterday afternoon.

TOO MANY FARM MACHINES HOLD DOWN PROFITS

Interesting Study Is Made By Economists of the State University

Power machinery has been a highly important factor in enabling Fayette County farmers to speed up wartime crop production in spite of labor and material shortages, but rural economists at Ohio State University point out there is a limit to the amount of machinery which can be economically operated on any farm and that this limit is connected with the market price of farm products.

In records kept by Ohio farmers and summarized by the University rural economists during 1944, the analysis of production costs shows there were farms with good crop yields which had comparatively low net incomes because machinery costs were excessive for the volume of crops produced. One group of farms with an average total crop value of $3,140 had average machinery costs of $820 for the year.

The economists explain that the items included in machinery costs were operating expenses and did not include purchase prices other than a charge for depreciation based upon the probable serviceable life of the machine. The $820 total for the year includes $169 for fuel and oil, $133 for machinery hire, $225 for depreciation, $187 for repairs, and $106 for interest and taxes on machinery.

University agricultural engineering specialists report that any mention in farmers' meetings that farms can be over-mechanized is sure to stir up acrid comment from the farmers. Each farm operator wants a full set of machinery so he can start any machine to work on his farm at the time he thinks best.

There are advantages in machine ownership which are evident both to extension specialists and to farmers. There also is a definite disadvantage in an overstock of machinery, and this disadvantage may become disastrous in a time of falling prices for farm products so the economists advise a close watch on this item of operating costs.

TOKIO, OHIO, FOLKS TAKING WAR CALMLY

TOKIO, August 15.—(AP)—The postmistress at Tokio early today not never even heard of the unconditional reports that Japan had surrendered.

Of course it was Tokio, Ohio, a tiny Van Wert county town of six houses and a general store which has a postoffice name of Tokio but which generally is known as Jonestown.

Postmistress Clara Metzger, reporting she had heard none of the surrender reports, said she had a large volume of mail to be sent out with the Tokio postmark whenever the war was declared officially ended.

SMILES AND TEARS IN ARMY HOSPITAL

Wounded Soldiers Unable To Celebrate Boisterously

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Among some of the boys who helped to make this day possible—patients at Crile General Hospital—there was no celebration when the news came that the Japanese radio reported acceptance of the Allied surrender terms.

—Just smiles.

Sgt. William Roberts, a ward man at Crile, was listening to the radio early today when the announcement was broadcast.

"Only a few of the fellows were up," he said, "but we woke up a number of the others."

"They could hardly believe the news. At first in their sleepiness, some of the boys thought it was some kind of a joke, told us to go away and rolled over as if to sleep.

"Then came a sudden realization of what the news meant and there were a lot of smiles. A few tears, too, tears of joy. I guess there won't be much celebrating, though. We haven't anything to celebrate with."

THE SPY—On His Way Out?

MATA HARI—Most glamorous of spies in what, during World War I, was regarded as a seductive pose.

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Written for Central Press Association and This Newspaper

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S commutation of the death sentences of two captured German spies to life imprisonment, with the explanation that the ending of the German war changed circumstances sufficiently to justify the lesser penalty, again focuses attention on the perplexing question of the status of military espionage in peace and war.

In reducing the sentences, the president acted upon the advice of the departments of justice and state, which in turn apparently followed the generally accepted international law on the subject.

The activities of spies were codified to a certain extent in 1907 when 44 nations participated in the Hague convention at The Hague in Holland.

The Hague convention agreed that a spy is anyone who during war obtains information clandestinely or under false pretenses in the zone of operations of a belligerent for the purpose of communicating it to the other party.

If a spy is caught, he is liable to be shot, according to the convention. And the interpretation seems to have been added that if the war ends in the meantime, his sentence will be reduced to a lesser penalty.

Exceptions

Specifically exempted from classification as spies are soldiers not in disguise who operate behind enemy lines, soldiers or civilians who openly carry messages across enemy lines, and members of aerial reconnaissance. These are treated as regular prisoners of war.

The question of when a soldier is a spy and liable for the death penalty arose early in American history. Maj. John Andre of the British Army was hanged in 1780 for his part in the Benedict Arnold treachery.

Andre's commanding officer, Gen. Sir Henry Clinton, tried in vain to have him considered a prisoner of war rather than a spy, but the Americans had captured him wearing a civilian coat over his full uniform.

Espionage is a time-honored custom of nations both in war and peace. It is written about in the Bible. Xenophon and Caesar commented on it. Oliver Cromwell in England and Cardinal Richelieu in France apparently first organized espionage in the 17th century along modern lines. Frederick the Great boasted that he was "always preceded by 100 spies."

Napoleon's espionage was sometimes as successful in routing the enemy as his armies. It was paid for out of secret funds, and some of his agents, notably Schulmeister, received money from both sides. Schulmeister was particularly prominent in the campaign of 1805, and his wiles so confused the Austrian commander that he capitulated at Ulm.

Spying is in the German tradition from the beginning. Prussian espionage was important in the fighting that led to German unification. It has been estimated that Germany had at least 30,000 spies in France in 1870, preparing the way for the French disaster in the Franco-Prussian war.

Spying was very prominent in World War I, apparently more so than in the present war unless secrets yet to be revealed prove otherwise. At the outset the Germans made extensive use of their nationals in other countries.

They represented themselves to be Swiss, Belgian, or Luxembourgish, and took jobs as domestic servants, hairdressers, farm workers, and commercial travelers, listening alertly for every scrap of information that was dropped in conversation, and picking up every piece of paper that might prove useful.

World War II has produced no counterpart as yet for the purportedly glamorous Mata-Hari, the native of Dutch East India, who was shot at Vincennes.

Few Names Yet

Numerous British, Belgians and French paid with their lives for acts of patriotic espionage, the mostly widely known being Nurse Edith Cavell, shot by the Germans for helping Allied prisoners, and Louisa de Bettignies, who died in prison after being similarly sentenced to death. Doubtless many members of the underground perished in the same manner in World War II, but few names have been singled out.

The tricky Japanese have contributed their share to the sordid story of spying. Their preparations for the Manchurian campaign in 1904-5 provided a classical pattern of intrigue and sneaking search for information.

Reduced Sentences Of German Agents Brings Up Question

What the Japanese lacked in the way of cavalry during the Russo-Japanese war, then a vital part of military reconnaissance, they made up for in spying by paid Chinese whom the Russians thought were natives.

The manner in which Japanese "tourists" took snapshots of everything they could focus a camera on in this country prior to Pearl Harbor is another example of Japanese espionage.

Nations not at war continue to spy on each other, sometimes with disastrous effects on their friendly relations. France's notorious Dreyfus case involved such an incident, the only issue being which Frenchman had been accepting bribes from the Germans to supply military information.

Great Britain broke off diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia after the police raid on Arcos, Ltd., in 1927, revealed Soviet espionage activity. Diplomats carry on what is known as "diplomatic espionage" in their search for information and data interesting to their countries. When they go too far, they are asked to leave.

It has long been recognized that espionage and counter espionage are recurrent causes for international incidents. The Brussels conference in 1874 considered the matter, and the Hague conference sought to adopt rules covering the practice.

Diplomatic Action

Penal measures, which during war-time generally involve the death penalty and in peace lesser penalties, are only part of the efforts to discourage and control espionage. Diplomatic action is resorted to, as in the British-Soviet incident of 1927.

Nations in which spying is not so much a part of the national tradition have been forced to adopt measures of counter espionage to block and offset the efforts of spies.

Outraged public opinion has played a role. It was hoped after World War I that the freer exchange of statistical and technical information among the nations by the various divisions of the League of Nations would reduce the real or fancied need for spying of one nation on another, but the League failed to live up to expectations in this regard as well as in other respects.

The development of a freer world press is believed to be one measure that will help to remove spying which is so dangerous to international goodwill and an activity which is undertaken with repugnance by nations that by their traditions recoil from undercover activity.

As the United Nations begin to function as a peace-preservation agency, the matter of espionage may appear on the agenda for early consideration.

Yanks Take Over Enormous Stadium Where Hitler Held Military Shows

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NUERNBERG, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The jeep hit an extra big bump and did a half gainer, but the corporal driving said not to be nervous, a suggestion which would have been more reassuring if we hadn't noticed he made sure his tin hat was firmly in place.

We bounced through rubble-banked streets, past an enormous stadium where Hitler used to rant and flex his military muscles by parading his war machines, thus causing visiting diplomats to go home and tell their people to stay away from that man as he carried a gun, and finally arrived at Soldiers Field.

The enormity of this outdoor convention hall is difficult to comprehend without viewing it. It is rectangular and a 440-yard dash probably could be held on the straightaway along the short side. The best idea of its magnitude may be gained from the fact that a full-sized baseball field, with 320-ft. foul lines and 400-ft. centerfield fence, is located in one corner and looks like a postage stamp on a piano box. Four and possibly six similar fields could be accommodated and the Yankee Stadium in New York might be temporarily misplaced in it.

The odd part of it is that the layout is not good from the American standpoint. It is so vast that any activity in it would be viewed by spectators as through a small end of a telescope, and Americans want to see what is going on.

The field was built by the Nazis as a setting for the great pageants that they staged to instill feeling of power and awe. Such pageants were theatrically staged. Lights would be turned off, giant smudge pots lighted high at corners, searchlights would beam upward from scores of blockhouses made for that purpose, bands would blare and 100,000 thrilled spectators would be out of this world into a dream world of Nazi power and invincibility.

Adjoining is a smaller stadium. This is more to Americans' liking. It is compact, seats about 30,000 and gives spectators a good view of proceedings. This site was chosen for the European theater track and field games and dressed up for the occasion in typical American manner.

Do not go away, we have some more. Adjacent to this Boy Scout field is a swimming pool so big, the Americans divided in it half and used only one part for a championship meet.

A big, odd shaped building with walls entirely of glass has been taken over by Americans for Red Cross coffee and doughnut hut.

The entire layout—both fields, swimming pool and adjacent ground—was used for weight events in weekend meets. It must have been elaborately landscaped at one time and probably was a scene of beauty. Americans now have German SS troops and civilian labor repairing the place.

It is odd to see this vast layout, once the scene of healing masses living in a dream of world conquest and rearranged into a state of blissful coma and hypnotized into believing they were a master race, now overrun by casual free thinking American GIs who have moved in and taken over like they owned the place. Which they actually do.

ACHESON RESIGNS STATE DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—An anticipated reorganization of the state department evidently has begun.

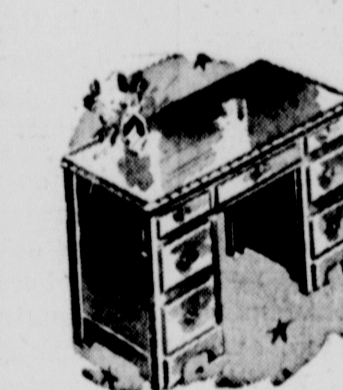

The resignation of Dean Acheson, 51, assistant secretary of state in charge of congressional relations and international conferences, was disclosed by an authoritative source last night. Other resignations are expected to follow as James F. Byrnes, the new secretary, picks his own assistants.

Some Capitol Hill observers believe that only William L. Clayton, in charge of economic affairs, will survive the expected turnover among the top assistants.

Brenda—Will You Step Out With Me Tonight?

I know I've been a awful grouch not taking you any place lately. But after standing all day at my new job, my feet darn near killed me with callouses and burning. Now I've reformed—or rather my feet have—thanks to the medicinal Ice-Mint you advised. Never tried anything that seemed to draw the pain and fire right out so fast—and the way it helps soften callouses is nobody's business! Been able to get some extra overtime money—so what do you say, let's go dancing tonight. You can step on my Ice-Mint feet all you want.

After War—What?
Does peace come after war? Yes. But not at first. Peace, like war, must be won. It takes long, careful preparation.

The cease-fire order is in itself an ineffable comfort. The mere absence of fighting brings tears of joy and relief. But it is not enough.

The prospect of safe return of fighting men to their homes, proper work and stations in life is wonderful—almost too good to be true, but not quite. It is true, but it is not enough.

Determination that war must not occur again is the first essential in winning true peace. It must be held fast in all the years to come. There must be a strong, ever-aware will to peace on the part of every individual citizen of all the United Nations. Next must come a high spiritual quality of life and let live, to inspire all international dealings. Fury and revenge have no place in this attitude. Neither have weakness and sentimentality. Cool intelligence must be brought to bear on the problems of getting along with all the nations of the world. Intelligence implements determination—sentimentality undermines it.

It is necessary, in the midst of present jubilation and future dulling of consciousness of war, that we remember Pearl Harbor; also Munich, Buchenwald, Nanking, Lidice, Bataan. A new generation of Germans and Japanese may arise which may rightly be treated as members of the family of nations. But all—they, too—must continue to remember the horrors of war, in order that its evil spirit may never rise again.

Which Constitution Is Paramount?

When in Portland, Oregon, recently, Cecil B. deMille, now more famous nationally for the stand he has taken on a matter of principle in labor union management than for his high place in the motion picture industry, said:

"I believe in unions and collective bargaining, but I'd give my last drop of blood to fight the dictates of a few men who believe they can control the political rights of American citizens."

Mr. deMille was referring to his now celebrated $1 assessment fight against the American Federation of Radio Artists which forced him off the airways and denied to the people the enjoyment of his radio plays, because he refused to pay the $1 fee. By action of the board of directors of A.F.R.A., and without a vote of the union membership, each member was assessed $1 to finance a political campaign in opposition to a change in the California constitution.

The lower court, in upholding the union, said it was fighting for its existence. Mr. deMille has appealed to the California Supreme Court.

"We are living under a constitutional government," he said, "and I am trying to find out whether it's the constitution of the United States or the constitution of a union."

"This is no issue of unionism. It is an issue between all liberty loving citizens and men who are trying to gather into

Mr. deMille stated that he has received more letters over this issue than he has on all the motion pictures he has ever made, thousands coming from members of unions.

It is hard to realize that in a supposedly free country, a supposedly free man cannot work at his trade unless he pays political assessment when demanded by his union. And yet that stands as a fact today, until the courts hold otherwise.

Beyond Our Depth

These are dreadful days for poor John Q. Citizen, as he reads the papers, trying to keep his mind on his job and, at the same time, struggling to figure out all this welter of atoms and atomic bombs, and destruction of Japanese cities by weird processes that suggest magic instead of logical warfare.

What can anybody think or feel or say, when he reads of a populous Japanese city like Hiroshima being obliterated by a single bomb, leaving nothing but desolation or a mere hole in the ground? We have learned, apparently, to destroy cities and their people in a way that seems nothing less than magic. We have reached into one of Nature's long-hidden mysteries, and learned to "tap the atom" of which all material things are made, thus gaining unprecedented power to use for our own purposes. We seem to have now what medieval alchemists sought for ages.

But there is peril, as well as temporary safety, in such power. And when our atom-smashing and magical bombing have saved our civilization from destruction, as they seem to be doing, there will be some serious problems to face. If the wise and good can use such weapons, very well. But who can measure the danger if the foolish and wicked get hold of them?

Men now dimly foresee a time when they will have plenty of pockets in their clothes again.

Infected Ear Can Be Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
AN EARACHE can be a very painful condition and if neglected it may turn out to be quite serious. When the middle part of the ear is infected, the condition is known as otitis media. In general, there are two kinds of otitis media. One is known as suppurative and the other as non-suppurative. In the suppurative type, there is a discharge from the ear. In the non-suppurative, no such discharge occurs. The non-suppurative type, as a rule, is a short-lived disorder, but it does continue for a long period of time in some cases.

The acute or short-lived condition is often called acute tubal catarrh. It is caused by an infection in the nose or upper part of the throat which leads to infection of the eustachian tube which connects the middle part of the ear and throat.

Blowing Nose
Blowing the nose improperly, and swimming are sometimes responsible for transfer of infection to the eustachian tube. This infection causes the lining membrane of the tube to swell and blocks the passageway through it. Then the air in the middle ear is absorbed, leaving a vacuum. The ear drum is then drawn in because of the vacuum and moderate pain may be present. There is also a feeling of fullness in the ear and head noises or ringing in the ears occur. Discharge may be present in some instances.

The treatment consists, first of all, in getting rid of those conditions such as enlarged adenoids, sore throat, or improper blowing of the nose. To relieve the pain and discomfort of the condition, hot applications or the use of drops of phenol and glycerin may be helpful. There is a method of blowing air through the eustachian tubes which, when properly carried out by the doctor, may lead to complete relief of the condition. However, this must be done gently and not at all if there is a great deal of swelling of the eustachian tubes.

Middle-Ear Disturbance
The chronic middle-ear disturbance may result from recurrent acute attacks or repeated sore throats. In this condition, the opening of the eustachian tube is likely to be swollen and blocked and there is some interference with the passage of air in and out of the middle ear.

Insofar as treatment of chronic middle-ear disturbance is concerned, once permanent changes in the tissues have occurred, there is not a great deal which can be done. However, it is important to clear up infections in the nose and throat, and to keep further attacks of inflammation of the eustachian tube from developing.

Some reckon their age by years, Some measure their life by art; But some tell their days by the flow of their tears, And their lives by the moan of their heart.
The dials of earth may show The length, not the depth of Few or many they come, few or many they go, But our time is best measured by tears.

Better a day of strife Than a century of sleep; Give me instead of a long stream of life The tempests and tears of the deep.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
The leading local missionary society was holding its May meeting in the home of Mrs. Azubah Fitch. Thirty or more women were ranged around the long living room, where portraits of ancestors hung thick on the walls, and the furniture radiated auras of past generations.
Mrs. Azubah Fitch was a tall woman, strong of bone, with an almost Indian profile. Charitable and churchy, she had her finger in almost every philanthropic effort in the community. She stalked about the room as majestically as a sister of Caesar. She paused before a knot of women with their heads together. "What is it?—what is it?" she boomed. "Something I can't hear!" "Just a little gossip, Mrs. Fitch, that, if it's true, touches us all," explained Mrs. Noct.
She gave them a heavy glance. "It's probably not true; but—what is it?" "Well, it comes from our plumber," answered Sarah George. "From Sam Buttles—we've always had his firm. Well, Sam said he had been called up to the old Wolfe place a couple of weeks ago to fix a water pipe in the basement."

"Wolfe," mused Mrs. Fitch. "Cy-rus Wolfe married my third cousin, Rhoda Freese. That's the picture of her grandmother over the bookcase." She sat down in a vacant chair, prepared to listen. "And Sam said that when he was hunting for the water shut-off, he noticed a door with a padlock on it. And the house man said, 'It's not in there' rather sharply. It made him wonder what was in there, so after he fixed the leak, he passed that door again and saw that the padlock wasn't closed. So he just looked in." She paused dramatically. "Go on—go on!" prodded Mrs. Fitch. "Liquor I suppose."

"No—it was dozens and dozens of tires—hoarders!" Lovina Cobb—a sharp-faced, willow-bodied brunette in her early forties—said to the room at large. "I think such things should be known, it's a protection to us all. Rachel Folsom told me yesterday, and her husband, Fred—you know he teaches in the high school—Fred had it straight from the man. . . . It seems that there has been short-waving in code going on all spring around November Mountain, and only the Lawrence and this new Mr. and Mrs. Jones live up that way."

His hostess spoke with ominous disapproval. "Old Mrs. Lawrence belongs to our society. She was sick today and couldn't come." "Oh, I didn't mean them—goodness no!—it's these new people we've been talking about. The man said that they chased the short-waving car right up to the Wolfe place, then lost it; and he as good as admitted that Jones was being watched by the police!" "Jones—millions of Jones—an alias, likely," gloomed Mrs. Fitch. "So he's a Fifth Columnist, is he? Living right in my cousin's house. . . . She would turn over in her grave!"

After he had departed, Ike carried out bundles of papers and disposed them on the rack. "Swell guy, the Major! And he knew about that short-wavin' all right, all right! His poker face told the story."

A hollow clop-clop of a horse's hoofs on one of the small bridges in State Forest Reservation; then "Spellunk" Adams, superintendent, dismounted to examine a rotting plank in the bridge floor; he resolved to bring a board that afternoon and fix it. Short of help in keeping up the five thousand acres, he made many small repairs himself.

He would have to leave all this, but he would soon be off to Buffalo to become a physical recreation director for a large war plant. Dismally "Spellunk" counted another loss. Cave-hunting was his hobby, and he belonged to the New England Speleological Association, the members of which are commonly called "spelunkers." His enthusiasm for caves had gained him his nickname. There were many caves in this vicinity, and he had not seen them all.

His healthy appetite reminded him that it was nearing noon, so he turned his horse toward home, a sturdy building of creosoted logs at the foot of the mountain. His hard, chunky body slipped easily off his horse near the stable. Coming around to the side, he saw a car in front and heard his wife, Kathy, talking to someone on the front steps. He beamed when he saw that it was Eleonore Lawrence. They shook hands cordially.

Kathy rose and said that she would get bread and milk for the two children, and cheese and sardines for them; Eleonore must eat a bite with them for who knew when there would be another opportunity? "Leaving town?" asked Eleonore. How soon did they expect to leave? Two weeks, or less. "Spellunk" then asked, "And now with you—what's cooking?" "An interest in caves."

"Is that a fact? What'd you mean—want to go in one?" He was suddenly radiant. "What cave do you plan to explore?" "Tories!"

He shook his head. That wasn't the best one, by far. "Have you been in Tories?" she inquired. "Long ago. It's called Robbers Roost, too; for in the fifties, some fellows hid there before robbing the Sweetsburg Bank."

What a coincidence, thought Eleonore. She asked, "What's it like inside?" "It has three big chambers, if I remember rightly, first overlapping, no fretting, no carving, no stalactites—just a dumb ordinary cave."

"Are there bats?" "Uh-huh; but they don't get in your hair. That's a fallacy." He spoke again after a minute's consideration. "See here, if you plan to go soon—I might be able to go with you."

Eleonore murmured "Thanks, Spellunk," but did not set a time for the expedition. Kathy appeared just then with luncheon which they enjoyed, sitting on the steps and chatting.

Yes, they had heard from Art and they felt that the message came from Hawaii. He was engaged to Mercedes Lake, the girl with him at the country club party. And Eben was coming home from camp this weekend, the first time since the dance. . . . Eleonore really must fly now. Gran's medicine! She would call them and have them come to dinner before they left town.

She had waved goodbye and was shifting gears, when "Spellunk" called, "Hi—wait a minute!" She stopped in a few yards. When he came up to the window, he said, "Just another little tip on caves—never go in one alone."

She smiled brilliantly. "Thanks a lot. See you soon." (To be continued)

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — A move is under way to change the Philippine election laws to permit more than 100,000 eligible Filipinos in the continental United States and Hawaii to vote in the vital initial post-war elections to be held in the islands this fall or early winter.
Dr. Diosdado M. Yap, editor and publisher of the magazine, Bataan, lecturer, and Washington correspondent for several Philippine newspapers, is one of the Commonwealth leaders urging the Philippine senate to give absentee votes to the thousands of natives.
The journalist estimates there are at least 75,000 Filipinos in Hawaii and in the United States who would cast a vote if permitted, forming an important voting segment in an already heated campaign, which, according to informed observers, is likely to be very close.
Dr. Yap's idea is that some of the best informed voters would be those who saw from the outside the picture of Japanese occupation of the Philippines and reoccupation by Gen. MacArthur's troops.
From a distance, too, he says, they probably would be better able to weigh the charges and counter-charges which the "collaborationists" and anti-collaborationists are hurling. On this bitter question and on plans for in dependence and economic future of the islands much of the political controversy there is now being waged.
An interesting sidelight on the proposal to give the non-resident Filipinos a vote is that when independence of the islands becomes a fact, the citizenship of those thousands now residing here or in Hawaii will have to be established by treaty. Whether their participation in the elections would have any effect on their citizenship status already is a point of discussion in Filipino circles.
Many, of course, long have been resident here and hold properties and jobs which they will not wish to sacrifice to their homeland.

Since liberation, the Philippines have witnessed a struggle for political power, with quiet, serious President Sergio Osmena on one side and his long-time political associate and friend, Senate President Manuel A. Roxas, on the other. When the late President Manuel Quezon left the Philippines and brought Vice-Presidential members of his cabinet out with him, Roxas stayed behind. It was some time before Roxas became associated with the puppet regime of Jose Laurel.
When the islands were retaken by MacArthur, Roxas and his family were in Baguio. They slipped out of the mountain city and joined the guerrillas and later reached the American lines. Instead of bearing the stigma of "collaborationist," Roxas developed as a popular hero. For more than 20 years, he has been strong proponent of Philippine independence, and now is Osmena's chief protagonist.

Larry Fisher Is Complimented on Seventh Birthday

Mrs. Leo Fisher feted her young son, Larry, at a jolly, informal birthday party Saturday afternoon.

Twelve youngsters were assembled at the Fisher home. After Larry opened his many gifts, to which he responded in a pleasing manner, games and contests provided amusement for the remainder of the afternoon. Games were played out-of-doors and Linda Shelley won the prize for an amusing dart game.

Late in the afternoon the guests were invited to the dining room and found their places marked at the dining room table by paper baskets filled with candy. A birthday cake, with seven candles, was served with ice cream.

Included with the honor guest were: Gerilyn Crocker, Linda and Billy Hidy, Linda Shelley, Ann Ducey, Wayne Burnett, Eric and Sue Blakely, Larry Bennett, Johnny and Jimmy McDonald.

Bloomington WSCS Plans for Supper Aug. 31

Twenty Bloomington WSCS members assembled at noon on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Wayne Bloomer for a covered dish luncheon. The bountiful meal was served cafeteria style from one large table which was laden with a bountiful assortment of delicious dishes.

At the conclusion of the happy hour about several small tables, which had been arranged for their convenience, they discussed plans to serve a chicken supper in the church on August 31.

The remainder of the time was spent in visiting informally.

Brothers Complimented With a Family Dinner

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford A. Johnson of the Bush Road was the scene of the reuniting of their two sons in service, Charles Arthur and Paul Edward. The two boys had not seen each other for two years.

A dinner in the boys' honor was given by their parents when they invited fifty-five relatives and friends to their home Sunday. The dinner was also in honor of Paul's nineteenth birthday.

It is usually most economical to select a lean piece of meat and have it ground into hamburger.

Exchange Vows On August 14 In Wisconsin

The Methodist parsonage in Pewaukee, Wis., was the scene of an exchange of marriage vows on Tuesday morning when Miss Edythe Esther Eldrich, daughter of Mrs. M. Eldrich, route 1, city, was united in marriage to Forrest Martin Lykins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lykins of Frankfort. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Soper as the hands of the clock approached eleven o'clock Tuesday morning. Attending the couple was Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McCredie.

The bride chose a white two-piece eyelet frock and had a corsage of red roses. Her attendant, Mrs. McCredie, chose a yellow ensemble.

The new Mrs. Lykins has been employed at a teacher in the Frankfort grade schools, while Mr. Lykins is affiliated with Fisher's Funeral Home.

They plan to spend the remainder of the week in Wisconsin.

SECURITY PROGRAM TO BE STRENGTHENED

President Promises To Ask Congress for Action

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(P)—This country's social security program embarks on its 11th year with a presidential pledge to ask Congress for action to make it "a more perfect instrument." President Truman made the promise in a tenth anniversary statement last night. The social security board at the same time announced that its payments during the last decade have approximated $9,000,000,000 with a 4,250,000,000 persons now receiving cash benefits. Receipts from employer-employee contributions have exceeded $21,460,000,000. The president's statement said "social security worthy of the name is not a dole or a device for giving everybody something for nothing. True social security must consist of rights which are earned rights—guaranteed by the law of the land."

Fore and Aft Hat

By ALICE ALDEN

THE GOOD hat this season is the one that offers interest from any angle or vantage point. One of the best models subscribing to this theory is by G. Howard Hodge who calls this design the "Fore 'n' Aft" and who showed it at the recent Millinery Creators' Guild collection. It is made of softly rounded lacy straw and a bright green dotted veiling is swirled around the flower-trimmed brim and continues in back to form an airy snood.

BASEBALL AND RACING GO ALL-OUT IN RETURN OF PEACE TO AMERICA

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Baseball and racing are planning to go full blast today on America's first peaceful day in nearly four years with Japan's surrender ushering in a new sports era that is expected to make the "Golden Twenties" look tarnished in comparison.

Racing and baseball magnates had planned to close down their plants if President Truman asked the people to observe a day of prayer. But the President proclaimed Wednesday and Thursday as legal holidays and since both sports normally operate on holidays the officials decided to carry on as usual.

Baseball leaders met in Washington today to discuss developments and it was believed that Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, would hand them the good news that the World Series could be played this October.

Football's post-season bowl games were considered to be a cinch but racing leaders were hopeful that the restrictions on movement of horses by common carriers would be lifted soon enough to allow a meeting of Busher and Gallotree, the two great three-year-old fillies.

The long awaited Joe Louis-Billy Conn return bout was being discussed in the same breath with $5,000,000 gates by fight figures along Jacobs Beach last night.

Talk of a 1948 Olympiad was in the air as Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, sailed for London to attend a meeting of the International Olympic committee. A. O. A. officials here said Brundage is taking with him the bids of several U. S. cities, including Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles but the officials indicated that bomb-devastated London probably would get first crack at the games last held in Berlin in 1936.

AA Leaders Lose Two to Kansas City

(By the Associated Press)

The Indianapolis Indians thought they had a kitten to dispose of as they neared the stretch drive in their race for the American Association leadership, but they learned it had grown a long set of claws since they last played it.

That was the last-place Kansas City team, the "kitten" which bowled over the league leaders twice last night, 6-2 and 10-4, and today left the Indians leading by two games. Second place Milwaukee, beaten by the Indians three out of four in their last series, turned on third-place Louisville last night for a 5-3 victory to take advantage of Indianapolis' two losses.

Minneapolis split a pair with Columbus, winning, 3-2, and losing, 8-7, while St. Paul improved its fourth place standing with a 2-1 victory over Toledo.

Edson Bahr held the Indians to three hits in winning the opener and Clarence Marshall gave them 13 hits in the nightcap. It was effective in the pinches. It was eight victories in nine starts for the blues.

Julio Acosta held Louisville to five hits while his mates put together eight hits and four Louisville errors for their 5-3 decision.

Tom Harmon To Play With College All-Stars

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Tom Harmon, the former all-America halfback from the University of Michigan who slipped off his army khaki Monday, will lose little time getting back into his football togs. The 25-year-old veteran, the Chicago Tribune announced today, will join the squad of college all stars this week in training at Dyche Stadium, Evanston, for their Aug. 30 meeting with Green Bay Packers in Soldier Field. The game is sponsored by the Tribune.

Sports Start Postwar Expansion

By BUS HAM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Coming quickly after Japan's surrender, government actions today and tomorrow probably will start turning sports back toward peacetime conditions.

With remarkable timing—just 16 hours after President Truman announced that the Japanese had quit—baseball today begins outlining a large-scale postwar expansion program. The two-day meeting opens at 11 A. M. (EWT).

At the same time, the Office of Defense Transportation is expected to figure out ways of relaxing travel restrictions affecting the 1945 World Series, professional football, horse racing and post-season college games.

Five minutes after President Truman released the news of Japan's capitulation last night,

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, said in effect that ODT will ease its pinch on sports travel.

He commented that "there is a possibility of those things being arranged for," meaning the World Series, professional football's 13 non-championship games, bowl football games and relaxation of restrictions on horse racing.

Commissioner A. B. "Happy"

Chandler called together baseball's postwar committee for the first joint meeting of major and minor leagues since he became the game's boss.

Further consideration of war veterans returning to baseball, how to give the game back to the corner kids and "general matters" will be among the subjects discussed.

World Series Assured by End of War

By JACK HAND

Chicago and Detroit take dead aim on a slice of World Series dough today as the two league leaders enter important series with the 1945 fall classic virtually assured by the Jap surrender.

Exact details of the Army and Navy plans for releasing veterans have yet to be announced but it is assumed baseball will receive its share of former players in certain cutbacks.

The Cubs may face some real trouble in Brooklyn where the St. Louis Cardinals just took three out of four in a bitterly-fought series. After dropping the finale in Philadelphia last night, 2-1, the Bruins' lead had shrunk to 5½ games with visits to Ebbets Field and the Polo Grounds just ahead.

Four games with the Brooks while the Cards are engaging the Phils four times may tell the story whether Chicago is going to walk in or have to fight it out down to the wire.

Andy Seminick's fifth inning home run coupled with another effective pitching job by Oscar Judd, the Boston Red Sox castoff, enabled the Phils to down Chicago.

St. Louis picked up a full game on Charley (The Banjo) Grimm and his happy gang but had to go right down to the final out to trim Brooklyn, 2-1, on Whitey Kurowski's ninth inning round tripper.

Pittsburgh snapped out of it to beat Boston in both ends of a doubleheader, 7-5 and 6-2 behind Fritz Ostermueller and Walter Beck. It was a third straight success for Ostermueller since his Army discharge and a third in a row for Beck since he was picked up from Cincinnati.

Salvatore Maglie, a rookie right-hander, broke into the big show the right way by hurling the New York Giants to a 5-2 victory over Cincinnati. It was the Reds' 11th successive loss and their 21st in the last 24 contests.

Rain washed out the Detroit-New York game in the first inning but the Tigers gained ground because Washington bowed to St. Louis, 5-4. The Senators are now 3½ lengths back of the Bengals as they unpack their bags for a four-day stay at Briggs Stadium.

Jim Bagby of Cleveland shut out Boston, 3-0, with three hits with the help of four masters by Mickey Rooco and Dutch Meyer.

The Indians lost the services of Manager Lou Boudreau for an indefinite period when he suffered a possible ankle fracture in a spill with Dolph Camilli at second base.

The Philadelphia at Chicago contest was postponed because of wet grounds.

NEW READY MIX CONCRETE PLANT IN OPERATION

Wilson's Hardware Starts City's Latest Industry With Most Modern Equipment

Getting ready for the expected postwar construction boom, the Wilson Hardware Company today has its new certified controlled ready mixed concrete plant, complete with all-steel bin and batcher, in operation.

The plant on West Elm Street, rises 75 feet above the D. T. & I. Railroad tracks beside it with belt lengths 72 feet, pulley to pulley. Just completed, it is fitted with automatic electric elevators for the manufacture of certified controlled ready mixed concrete. The bins have a capacity for four carloads of materials and the unloading capacity is a carload an hour.

Willard F. Wilson and his son, Billie Wilson, owners and managers, said "this is a modern post-war plant with the latest equipment for the manufacture of fully controlled quality concrete." They said they had been studying controlled concrete plants for more than five years and observed that "had we bought one then, we probably would have made a mistake as this is a postwar plant designed to handle cement in bulk with screw under track conveyor, the same as the aggregates are handled, and placed in a separate compartment bulk bin high in the air but unloaded into truck mixers at the same shot into weighing batchers with one stop." They pointed out that "every minute counts in producing good concrete" and then went on to explain that at their plant a car of materials could be unloaded or a full truck load of ready mixed concrete supplied "about as easy as one can switch on a reading lamp."

The new plant has every conceivable gadget they said as they pointed to a water weighing device, auxiliary water supply, cement air fluffing jets, steam jets, electric vibrators, clog shakers, over-and-under, tell-tale scales, over-gauge dump, ground control selector, sump pump, grizzly safety cover, lip light flap gates and safety glass view of operations.

Additional trucks are to be purchased as soon as they are available.

East Monroe

Edgar Gregory, of the U. S. Navy, is spending a short leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Gregory.

Robert Thompson of Columbus is spending a few days with his brother, C. W. Thompson.

Welson Satterfield and wife and daughter of Blanchester spent last Saturday with Fay Washburn and family.

Robert Alexander and family of North Hampton and Lee Fishback and family of Cuyahoga Falls, are visiting with W. G. Fishback.

The East Monroe Sunday School held a meeting and had a potluck dinner at Leesburg roadside park Sunday.

Frank Cox, of the U. S. Army, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cox.

V. H. Gregory has purchased the property of Sam Soales and Mr. Soales has bought a dwelling of Walter Kerns in Leesburg.

Beryl Fry, wife and daughter, spent a few days the past week with her parents in Hillsboro.

The B. and O. R. R. Company are building a new bridge over Rattlesnake creek near the falls. The old one having been built in 1898, was not strong enough to hold the present day traffic. They are reinforcing the old abutments and piers, which were made of stone with concrete.

Richard Cook and family have moved into the property of Babe Smith. He has accepted a position in the filling station of Shad Gossett in Greenfield.

CARPENTER ARRAIGNED ON MURDER CHARGE

OTTAWA, Aug. 15—(AP)—Loody L. Red, 68-year-old carpenter of Ottawa, will be arraigned Monday before Judge A. A. Slaybaugh on a charge of first degree murder in the death Aug. 3 of Edward P. Muhlbaugh, 27, a candidate for mayor of Lima in the July 31 primary there. A Putnam County grand jury indicted Red yesterday.

BOY'S BODY RECOVERED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15—(AP)—U. S. Coast Guardsmen have recovered the body of James Rizzo Jr., 6, who drowned in Edgewater Park Sunday after the lad's sister, Theresa, 7, attempted to prevent him from leaping into five feet of water.

MIDGET WOMAN GUEST SPEAKER AT ROTARY CLUB

Xenia News Reporter Says Size No Handicap and Problems Same

"Little people are not handicapped but their problem is a personal one of adjusting themselves to cope with ordinary situations the same as any normal person," declared Miss Mildred Mason of Xenia, in a talk on "Little People" before the Washington C. H. Rotary Club at the Country Club Tuesday noon.

Miss Mason is a member of the editorial staff of the Xenia Gazette, is corresponding secretary of the Ohio Newspaper Association and is past president of the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club.

"To the majority of people we 'little people' are a curiosity," she said, "because they wonder why we are little and whether it is an advantage or disadvantage." She then described in detail the two distinct types of little people—midgets and dwarfs. "True midgetism results from a malfunctioning of the pituitary gland," she said, adding a midget is proportioned perfectly while a dwarf has abnormally short arms and legs resulting from abnormal bone structure.

Miss Mason, who is four feet tall, reviewed the origin of the famous troupe of Singers' Midgets and interspersed her talk with many personal experiences she has encountered as a result of her size. In conclusion she entertained Rotarians with two children's monologues.

Miss Mason's appearance here brought to the Rotarians a unique and very interesting program. She proved clever in elocutionary ability and her amusing anecdotes and imitations caused many a ripple of laughter through her audience. She is full of bright enthusiasm and is very active. Her alertness and good humor made a splendid impression on her hearers.

IMMEDIATE REDUCTION IN DRAFT OF MEN FOR SERVICE NOW PLANNED

Pacific 12 months from now, or what reduction it may be possible to make in the strength of the Army force now allotted to occupation in Europe."

About 400,000 troops have been assigned to the European occupation force. Estimates of how many men will be needed for occupation of Japan have run as high as 1,000,000.

What effect the slash in the draft call and limiting it to men under 26 will have on congressional demands for quick suspension of all inductions remains to be seen.

One of the leaders of the suspension move, Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House military committee, said the modifications directed by the president "may settle the matter."

May added, however, there should be some limit on how long the 50,000-a-month call will be continued.

In announcing continuance of the draft on a reduced scale, Mr. Truman said the 50,000 call would "provide only sufficient men to support the forces required for occupational duty and to permit the relief of long service men overseas."

"In justice to the millions of men who have given long and faithful service under difficult and hazardous conditions of the Pacific war and elsewhere overseas, a constant flow of replacements to the occupational forces is thought to be imperative," the president said.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

FAYETTE COUNTY BOYS IN SERVICE

Carl C. Barney has been promoted to seaman first class. He is stationed in Honolulu, Hawaii. Mrs. Barney lives at 824 Yeoman Street.

Master-Sgt. Stuart Gossard has returned to Stout Field, Indianapolis, Ind., having spent a 15 day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gossard.

Leroy Snyder, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snyder of near Jeffersonville, has been promoted from corporal to the rank of sergeant. Sgt. Snyder spent two years in Panama, and is now stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

T-5 Elden L. Kirk has returned to Camp Atterbury after a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Kirk and family. He has been in service three years and wears the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon, the liberation of the Philippine ribbon, good conduct medal, bronze star, three battle stars and the purple heart.

Douglas Jarrell, fireman first class, USNR, whose wife lives at 105 East Elm Street, was aboard the USS Salt Lake City in the East China Sea, when this heavy cruiser hurled more than 150,000 tons of projectiles at enemy planes, ships and land emplacements off Okinawa.

Veteran of major invasions from Guadalcanal to Okinawa, the Salt Lake City's 5-and-8-inch guns pounded the island by day and remained on the alert to repel Jap suicide attacks by night. Shipboard routine on the Salt Lake City was restricted entirely to battle throughout the campaign. The pre-invasion bombardment was halted by L-Day—Easter Sunday—for the troops to make their landings.

Not many cattle were seen up on the great plains of the West before the Civil War.

BROTHERS MEET TO TRADE WAR STORY AT HOME

Both Sergeants Wounded, They Fought in Different European Areas

Two brothers—both sergeants, both wearers of the Purple Heart, both sons of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Merritt of Florence Street—are having the time of their lives exchanging experiences in two halves of the European war.

The brothers are Sgt. Charles Merritt and ex-Sergeant James P. Merritt. James has been discharged from the Army after being treated for wounds at Percy Jones General Hospital, Battle Creek, Mich.

James served in Germany, France and Belgium. Charles was in Africa, Tunisia, and Sicily. The two, together for the second time in four years, have been busy exchanging experiences—

NO V-J ARRESTS ARE NEEDED HERE

Sane Celebration Is Opinion of Police Force

No arrests were made Tuesday night by the police force here. Any fights which cropped up—and there were a few minor ones in the celebrating crowds which jammed the business section—were settled without needing the police. It was a pretty sane celebration all told, police here feel.

Sheriff Orland Hays reported he "didn't have a call all last night and there wasn't any trouble."

DISCHARGED GASOLINE RATIONS INDIVIDUALIZED

Discharged GI Joe should have no gasoline worries—at least until he gets a job.

Any discharged serviceman should present his separation papers (not discharge papers) at the ration board here. The clerks there will help him fill out a special application for gas rations which are tailored to the individual's needs.

The measuring stick for the individual ration will be what he needs to get a new job, whether it is in Washington C. H. or some other town, it was said at the ration board.

TOOL IS NAMED CORRESPONDENT FOR NAVY GROUP

Enlisted Man Will Write Stories About Crews on Eight Ships

Dale D. Tool, sailor-son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon V. Tool, 403 North North Street, now is the official enlisted news correspondent of his transport division somewhere in the Pacific.

Before he entered the Navy less than a year after he graduated from WHS in 1943, Tool was sports editor of the Record-Herald.

It was on the basis of his previous news writing experience that Tool was named to the post by his commander.

It means Tool will spend all of his spare time writing articles about members of the crew for their home-town papers. When he runs out of material on the ship where he is stationed now, he will be transferred to one of the other eight ships in the division to get information about their crews. It will take from four to six weeks to "cover" each ship.

Tool attended Ohio State University for a short time before entering the Navy. His rating now is So 2-C.
